15:35:23 From Leah Kingsley's iPhone (2) to Everyone:

I also think it takes more intensive case management. Our service providers are stretched so thin because we don't have enough case managers for everyone. Some people may actually be a better fit for non-CAS housing but they need more support.

Agree with Hez

15:40:03 From Gabriel Kendall to Everyone:

I want to be clear, my commentary is in no way targeted at SHRA. You're a core partner in all of this and a helpful and critical piece in doing this mapping. I appreciate the complexity and magnitude of what you do managing and bringing these resources to our most vulnerable community members. While timelines vary, understanding the shortfall in what we have, versus what is in the pipeline (as long and inexact as the timelines may be), backdropped against the big picture of total housing and shelter stock we need there will be a large gap we need to quantify and communicate cohesively in my opinion.

It was stated well. As we become more efficient in our assessment and inputting data - we don't want it to just be a holding place. It is to our advantage and in reporting to HUD that we understand shelter/housing access and availability
